Subject: POTENTIAL CYCLONE ACTIVITY IN ARABIAN SEA.

Reference: F.2 (E)/2015-NDMA (MW/Advisory), dated: 05 June 2015 (Copy Enclosed)

Pakistan Meteorological Department Flood Forecasting Division (PMD) vide their press release has predicted that in Arabian Sea, the persistence of clouds shows an area of convection with a potential of development of a cyclone circulation over there. Sea surface temperature and upper air analysis also point towards the development of a deep low pressure area. The numerical models are continuously indicating such cyclone activity in Arabian Sea at a distance of now 1000 km south of Karachi near Indian coast in the Arabian Sea. According to estimates it has the potential to develop into a Tropical Cyclone on 6th June 2015 but is likely to move North-Westward and chance of hitting Pakistan coast directly are less.
